

MILLER CAMERA SUPPORT

DV SHOOTER SURVIVES WHAT MOTHER NATURE DISHES OUT!

High quality camera support is vital if you are using the new HDV cameras to capture your perfect images. Even the slightest unwanted movement is inevitably more obvious in the HDV format. The type of tripod used for your production is now more important. The use of a true fluid head on a professional tripod will ensure the smoothest pan and tilt actions in your production.

In order to achieve smooth camera movement, Miller Camera Support has taken into account the HDV age to produce systems — from Solo5 to Solo20. Combining true fluid pan/tilt heads with portable, lightweight and stable tripods. Achieving silky-smooth movements for all camera models from Mini-DV to HDV camcorders, Miller's DV fluid head range meets all the critical requirements to creatively contribute to a professionally-shot production.

Jim Kinsey from Montana DV has been on the road filming with Miller in the Arctic. "We tried to catch up with a Polar bear in temps as low as -70 below. The Solo DV system went to hell and back, under the most gruelling conditions I have ever filmed in throughout the world. No issues at all, I am so happy that I can depend on my Miller Solo DV system in any type of conditions that Mother Nature can dish out."

NOW YOU CAN ACCESSORIZE THE MOST WIDELY-LOVED DV TRIPOD IN THE BUSINESS! "THE SOLO FROM MILLER"

ADVERTORIAL

For on-the-move applications, the new, lightweight SoloPOD is a quality carbon fibre monopod with a height range of 21" to 66". The precision-made 3-stage telescoping leg has the same comfortable neoprene grip well known to the Solo tripod user.

To add ultra-smooth fluid-style rolling action to your Miller Solo DV tripod, include a Miller Solo DV Dolly in your kit. The Solo DV dolly can manoeuvre through doorways, folds down for compact carrying and is a versatile addition to your SOLO DV tripod, enabling creative shots in your production.

The new add-on SOLO leg covers offer greater protection to the Solo Legs and provide a super comfortable velvet texture grip which is easy to remove and clean.
